To the Citizens of Oregon!

A. H. FRANCIS,

FOR many years a Merchant in Portland, has opened a Commission House in Victoria, V. I., for the sale of all kinds of flour, grain, bacon, butter, eggs, apples, &c., &c. All those having such articles to dispose of, and are desirous of turning them speedily into cash, at fair prices, will be accommodated by shipping to A. H. F., Victoria, V. I. My well known reputation as a merchant in Portland, and my acquaintances and large trade in Victoria since 1859, will, I venture to say, be sufficient guarantee that every attention to quick and safe sales, and prompt returns, subject to the order of the consignor, will be strictly adhered to. My business shall be strictly CASH. I would recommend shippers to ship the best quality of articles.

26dtolp A. H. FRANCIS.

Brooms! Brooms!

BOLTER BROTHERS

HAVE REMOVED THEIR BROOM FACTORY TO Front street, opposite O. N. Co.'s Wharf, where they are now making the BEST QUALITY OF BROOMS ever offered in this market.

They are satisfied that they can furnish merchants and the people of Oregon with better and cheaper Brooms than they can get from California or elsewhere.

Please call and examine our Brooms and satisfy yourselves of the fact.

Demise of the Oregon "Statesman."

On the last day of the old year the Oregon Statesman, published at Salem, breathed its last. Its demise is quite a noticeable event in the annals of Oregon journalism, and ought not to pass into history without a cotemporaneous notice. The paper was founded in March, 1851, by Asahel Bush, then recently from Westfield, Mass. For many years thereafter he was the publisher, editor, general and local correspondent, and often a hand at the case—besides giving private direction and point to the incipient politics and personalities of the country, by means of personal correspondence with the captains and drill-sergeants of each county and neighborhood. The paper was the organ and engine of the once famous Salem clique—composed of Bush and a few personal friends and intimates at the core, with an indefinite and far-reaching rind and net work of retainers and sympathizers, throughout the State. Up to the dissolution of the Democratic party in 1860, the Statesman was cock of the walk in Oregon, and the terror and scourge of trimmers, falterers, gobetweens and fault-finders. Its forte was attack. It never defended anything or anybody but itself, and that rarely. But as Bush grew rich and respectable (so to speak) he began to shirk the tedious toil, and edited it by proxy. In 1863 he sold it to a publishing company. In their hands it kept on the Union tack until this summer, when it changed hands again and became a Johnson organ, under the editorship of a young Oregonian, Samuel L. Simpson. The establishment has been purchased by the American Unionist at Salem, and merged in the office of that paper.

As I write, a file of the Statesman from the first issue lies near me. I often glance over the early numbers, every page of which brings vividly to mind the beginning days in Oregon, when the Statesman sanctum was the focus of wit, fun and mayhap devilitry, as well as the seat of Oregon empire. In its columns I first saw my "pen write" in print, and now when it has ceased to be, I drop this friendly stone upon its cairn.—Portland Cor. S. F. Bulletin.

THE MOUNTAIN MEADOWS MASSACRE.—In the Wasatch Mountains of Utah is a tribe of Indians who call themselves "Mooties," or are called by the whites "Muddies," and from whom the clear and sparkling river, Muddy, derives its name. The Austin Reveille has the following in regard to the connection of these Indians with the Mormons in the Mountain Meadows massacre:

These Indians were formerly regarded by the dwellers upon the Colorado and travelers between Salt Lake and Los Angeles as warlike, and the most dangerous and troublesome in that section of the country. They have until lately been very friendly to the Mormons, and appeared to be in a great measure under their control. The mutual friendship, however, was only for the purpose of alliance against others, and when the opposite party became numerous and strong the Indians transferred their friendship. In this condition there is a prospect of verifying the old adage that "when thieves fall out honest men get their dues." These Indians are now anxious to reveal their knowledge of the crimes committed by their old allies, the Mormons, and in which they had participated. They have, perhaps, lately learned that murder and robbery are considered as crimes, for which punishment is meted, if committed by whites, but probably fancy that Indians are not punishable, such crimes being thought commendable by them. The Mooties reside in that part of the country where the Mountain Meadows are situated, and were witnesses and participants in the terrible massacre there committed by the Mormons a number of years ago. Of that horrid transaction they retain a vivid recollection, and the particulars of it they are anxious to reveal. They report their acquaintance with the leading Mormons who participated in the massacre, the disposal of the property, and also that there are now several children yet in Indian captivity who were taken from the murdered emigrants. The fact that there are children yet in captivity should induce the Government to make some exertion for their rescue, and to renew its investigations into the murder of so many men, women and children. We believe that while Cradlebaugh was Judge in Utah the affair was pretty well sifted, and the massacre fixed beyond a doubt upon the Mormons and its leaders made known. A vast amount of testimony was taken and several reports made by the stern and upright old Judge, and these are probably stowed away in the archives of some department at Washington. Perhaps any attempt at punishment during the terms of conciliating Pierce or effete Buchanan would have been abortive, but now, instead of such Presidents, an energetic Congress shapes the policy of the Government, and with new evidence offering, we call upon our loyal and determined Congress to renew the effort to rescue the captives of misfortune and to bring to condign punishment the perpetrators of one of the most terrible crimes that has ever disgraced the annals of American civilization. The time is opportune. The Mormons are defiant and oppressive, and yet seek shining lights for great examples of terror. It is time that an example should be made in return. Their murder of the emigrants, or the assassination of Bloomfield or Robinson, was not for plunder, nor to recover an apostate, nor to avoid a lawsuit, but to strike terror into others, so that the Mormons might rule undisputably. These will be repeated and other deeds of horror committed, unless the Government speedily intervenes to protect and punish. The Indians of whom we have spoken now mix with the miners and prospectors in the southeastern section of the State, are friendly and quite intelligent, and are familiar with the deeds of the Mormons. Their testimony or their aid in tracing circumstances may lead to the complete unraveling of that great mystery.

GOLD MEDAL FOR MRS. LINCOLN.—On December 1st, the gold medal purchased in France, by subscription, for Mrs. Lincoln, was delivered by the Committee into the hands of Mr. Bigelow, at the United States Legation. Mr. Bigelow was at the same time requested to take charge of the following letter:

TO MRS. LINCOLN.

MADAME: We are charged to present you with the medal struck in honor of the great man whose name you bear, at the desire of upward of 40,000 French citizens, who wish to manifest their sympathy for the American Union by a tribute of respect to the memory of one of its purest and most illustrious representatives. If France possessed the liberties which America enjoys, it is not by thousands, but by millions that the admirers of Lincoln would be counted.

Pray accept, Madame, the homage of our profound respect.

In presenting the above letter and medal, M. Albert, the member of the Provisional Government of 1848, addressed Mr. Bigelow as follows:

"We thank you, Sir, for having taken upon yourself to transmit to Mrs. Lincoln the gold medal which French citizens desire to present to her. This medal is a homage rendered to the illustrious President for whom she mourns, a testimony of admiration for the man who immortalized himself in the service of the great Republic of the United States, and a thank offering due to him from all defenders of liberal and democratic views throughout the world. We are happy to think, sir, that Mrs. Lincoln will receive this medal from your hand, and we beg you to accept the expression of our warm sympathy for the great nation which you have the honor to represent."

Mr. Bigelow warmly thanked the Committee for their sympathy with the American Republic.

THE SPRINGFIELD ARMORY.—The Springfield Republican says that preparations are nearly completed at the armory for a considerable increase in the force of workmen and their production. The work of altering over the present patent of musket to the new breech-loader, of the model lately approved by the examining board at Washington, will be immediately commenced on quite an extensive scale, and the repair work on the old guns gradually reduced. One of the first of the new weapons, and in every respect a model gun, was finished yesterday and sent to New York, where it will go to M. Montholon, the lately retired French Minister at Washington, and thence to France, though not for exhibition at the Paris Exposition.

A petition is in circulation for the pardon of the New Jersey Legislator convicted of bribery. Arguments for the petition—He was green and knew no better. Of such is the kingdom of New Jersey.

Indulgence in the elegant sport of cock fighting was the cause of the arrest of the fifteen persons in Buffalo on the 26th. Nine chickens were pitted by the sportsmen, and some of the sportsmen were pitted by the Judge, who let them go without fines.

A woman in St. St. Louis got fitted with a set of teeth at a dentist's, and thought to get them for nothing by running away with them, but the dentist followed, and after a long chase, bareheaded, through the streets, overtook her, and she handed over the greenbacks.

A young man out west was entrusted with the money to bring his father home a good family sewing machine. He carried off a neighbor's daughter to Chicago, married her, and brought her home, declaring she was the best family sewing machine he could procure.

A young man of great gallantry recently rescued a beautiful woman who was in danger of drowning. She stood in high tied shoes, surrounded by forty springs under a watered silk, with a cataract in her eye, a waterfall on the back of her head and a notion in her brain.

At Warrensburg, Mo., a man was fined $25 for shooting at two citizens, whereupon a local paper says: "Warrensburg is a fast town. Next christmas twenty-five cents will pay for one shot at a turkey, distance two hundred yards, or $25 will pay for two shots at citizens at twenty yards.

A meerschaum pipe was recently sold by auction in Chicago for $100. Its first public appearance is said to have been at the coronation of Philip II. of Spain, three hundred years ago. Subsequently it has been owned by King Ludwig of Bavaria and Lola Montez. It holds an eighth of a pound.

London, besides immense quantities of meat raised in England, annually consumes over 200,000 cattle, and nearly 1,000,000 sheep and lambs, that are imported from the Continent. The greater portion of these cattle are killed where they are raised, and are taken to the metropolis in the form of dead meat.

A writer in the Georgia Constitutionalist proposes to make Horace Greely the Southern candidate for the Presidency. He says Mr. Greely would merely ask the South to adopt universal suffrage, he would use no force to that end, and therefore universal amnesty and restoration is the whole of his creed, practically.

Cardinal Cullen, in his pastoral, warns the people of Ireland against Fenianism and revolutionary conspiracies, but quietly says he cannot understand why England assails Fenianism so severely after according a national ovation to Garibaldi, and cordial patronage to Mazzini, the great architect of secret societies.

The Norwich Bulletin says that a lady, who got on Conductor Clapp's train at Danville, recently, with a ticket for Springfield, got off at Plainfield Junction, went into the depot, and increased the transient population of that town by the addition of a pair of twins to the census. She was a traveler—whichever way you spell it.

At a grocery story in New Haven, a few days since, a stranger offered to wager the proprietor twenty-five cents, that he could jump into a basket of eggs that stood by the door without breaking them. The money was put up, and the eggs were smashed, apparently to the astonishment of the jumper, but more damaging to the owner.

The Erie Dispatch says that a young lady named Hankins, who has been teaching school in the neighborhood of Lake Pleasant, recently undertook to correct a pupil, a little girl, when she was set upon by an elder sister of the pupil and cruelly beaten. She was thrown down and her skull fractured, so that she is now a maniac beyond the hope of recovery.

Lieut. Mage, of the French navy, recently read before the Geographical Society in Paris a narrative of his travel in Senegambia. He mentioned that he met in a village, which Mungo Park records he visited, an octogenarian negro, who remembered to have seen in his early youth a white man, but a white man who must have been extremely poor, for he made him no present.

Great Freshet at Walla Walla.

The following is from the Walla Walla Statesman of the 1st inst.:

On Sunday the 7th our valley was visited by a warm rain, which rapidly melted the snow on the mountains and caused the streams that drain the valley to rise far beyond their usual magnitude. The rain continued to descend all day on Monday and through the night, until Tuesday morning, when Mill Creek was found to have assumed the proportions of a river. Up to this time but little damage had been done beyond the washing away of wood piles and an occasional outhouse. The rain continued to descend on Tuesday, and as a consequence the streams became more swollen. Mill Creek, about a mile from town, overflowed its highest banks, and the stream thus divided, poured a flood of water down along the line of Alder street, causing considerable destruction of property far removed from ordinary high water. At the corner of Third and Alder streets, so fierce was the torrent for a time, that it threatened to carry away Mr. Linkton's warehouse, and with it a large quantity of grain. By great exertion the torrent was turned into the bed of Alder street, and the building escaped with little damage, other than the washing away of the foundations and the consequent sinking of the structure. The only other damage of special note along the line of Alder street was the filling of Mr. Phillips' fire proof cellar, in which was stored a stock of stoves and hardware, all of which is damaged. All day on Tuesday and the greater part of Wednesday, this portion of the town presented the appearance of a lake, and persons living beyond Alder street could only reach their homes by fording a stream waist deep. A temporary bridge was finally erected over Alder street, between Third and Fourth streets, which for the time being proved a great convenience.

Going back to the main channel of Mill Creek, at an early hour on Tuesday morning, a couple of small frame buildings, immediately in the rear of the Court House, were surrounded with water, and it was with some difficulty that the inmates of the house were removed. Subsequently both the buildings were carried away, leaving the rear of the Court House exposed to the full force of the rising torrent. This was the condition of affairs up to noon on Tuesday. As already stated, the rain continued to descend, and as a consequence this vast volume of water was steadily gaining force. All along the line of Mill Creek, out buildings were being carried away, and the piles, which were put down, at great cost, for the purpose of confining the creek to its channel, were being forced up and drifted away. Indeed the whole piling was a useless expenditure of money, the piles having proved worthless as a protection.—Whatever bulkheads had been resorted to, as at the upper end of Main street, they were found to answer the purpose, and withstood the fury of the torrent. The piling which ex-Mayor Thomas had put down for the protection of the rear of his residence was in great danger. By extraordinary exertion, and putting in a bulkhead composed of gunny bags filled with gravel, the force of the current was checked, and the main building saved. As it was, Mr. Thomas is a heavy loser. Tuesday passed off without any other material damage to note, although the water was constantly gathering force. Throughout Tuesday night, the greater part of our citizens remained on guard, expecting every moment the bridge at the upper end of Main street to be swept away, and with it the deluging of the business houses on Main street. Fortunately the bridge rode out the storm in safety, and from this fact, the town in a great measure, owed its safety. Early on Tuesday night, the rear part of the lot on which the Court House stood washed away, and it was feared that the entire building would be swept into the torrent. At about one o'clock on Wednesday morning, the back of the building gave way, and the water tore through the timbers, but fortunately the front held on, and thus we were spared a great calamity.

During Tuesday night the bridge across Mill Creek, at the intersection of Second street, was swept away, but fortunately without other damage. In the course of the night the rear part of Mooney's bowling alley, which extended back to Mill Creek, was carried away, and with it two young men who were sleeping in the back part of the alley. The first they knew of their danger they were floating down the stream. As luck would have it the wreck struck against a sandbank, after having gone but a short distance, and the terrified sleepers escaped without much difficulty. Early in the storm, the fire-proof cellar of Mr. Stevens, at the upper end of Main street, was flooded, and the merchandise stored therein considerably damaged. Nearly all the fire-proofs abutting on the creek sustained more or less damage from being flooded, as will appear from the general statement of losses. Outside of town, we learn that all the bridges on Mill Creek, as far up as Perkins' Mill, were swept away. The bridges over all the streams that put into the Walla Walla are reported to be carried away, although possibly the report may be exaggerated. On Wednesday morning, at an early hour, the water in the Walla Walla, seven miles below town, marked nine inches above the high mark of 1862, and consequently, is the highest that has been known since the settlement of the Valley. As one of the results of the fearful freshet, our mail communication was cut off from Monday to Thursday. On Tuesday morning, the indefatigable stage driver, Joe Sanders, started out with the Boise mail, but was compelled to return, having gone less than three miles from town. On Wednesday he attempted to take the mail through on horseback, but was again compelled to return. On Tuesday, that knight of the whip, Ward, succeeded in driving his stage through to Wallula and back, since which time no attempt has been made to go below. From all quarters of the Valley we hear of fields overflowed and fences carried away, and certainly more wide-spread destruction could scarcely be imagined.

In the proper place we omitted to state that previous to the Court House toppling over, all the papers and public documents were removed to a place of safety. The Auditor's safe containing the records and title deeds was removed and now stands in front of the wrecked building. As usual in the case of a great calamity, instances of selfishness were exhibited disgraceful to human nature. Men who stood idly by and refused to lend a helping hand towards saving property, were among the most active in playing the part of wreckers, and appropriating whatever they could lay hands on. These, however, were exceptions, the great majority having worked nobly and faithfully to save the property of their neighbors from destruction.

THE TOUCHET.

A gentleman just in from the Touchet, informs us that on Wednesday morning the water was 18 inches deep on the floor of the Milton mill. A considerable quantity of flour and grain was stored in the mill, and was necessarily damaged. The flume leading to the mill was slightly damaged. At Waitsburg, we hear that no damage had been sustained. The water was on the floor of the new hotel, but beyond that all the other buildings, including Wait's mill, had escaped injury. Further reports from the valley are looked for with interest, and we fear, that the catalogue of damages will be greatly extended.

STATEMENT OF DAMAGES.

Of the damages sustained within the city limits, we have prepared a careful estimate. The list may not be altogether full, but we think that it will be found in the main correct:

Dr. Benj. F. Patterson, formerly a surgeon in the United States army, and son of the late Judge Patterson, of Mobile, Ala., has fallen heir to property of some $250,000. The only difficulty in the way of the lucky man possessing this windfall is that he cannot be found, not having been heard from since 1864, when he was at Bermuda Hundred, Va., on board General Graham's flag-ship.

Demise of the Oregon "Statesman."

On the last day of the old year the Oregon Statesman, published at Salem, breathed its last. Its demise is quite a noticeable event in the annals of Oregon journalism that ought not to pass into history without a solemn obituary in the [illegible]. The paper was founded in March 1851 by Asahel Bush, then recently from Westfield, Mass. For many years thereafter he was the principal editor, general and local correspondent and foreman at the case—besides giving private directions on all points to the incipient politics and personalities of the country by means of personal correspondence with the captains and drill sergeants of each county and neighborhood. The paper was the organ and engine of the once famous Salem clique—composed of Bush and a few personal friends and associates at the centre, with an indefinite and far reaching rank and net work of retainers and sympathizers, throughout the State. Up to the dissolution of the Democratic party in 1860 the Statesman was cock of the walk in Oregon, and the terror and scourge of trimmers, falterers, go-betweens and fault finders. Its forte was attack. It never defended anything or anybody but itself and that rarely. But as Bush grew rich and respectable (so to speak) he began to shirk the tedious toil and edited it by proxy. In 1863 he sold it to a publishing company. In their hands it kept on the Union tack until this summer, when it changed hands again and became a Johnson organ, under the editorship of a young Oregonian, Samuel L. Simpson. The establishment has been purchased by the [illegible] at Salem, and merged in the office of that paper.

As I write a file of the Statesman from the first issue lies near me. I often glance over the early numbers, every page of which brings vividly to mind the beginning days in Oregon, when the Statesman sanctum was the focus of wit, fun and mayhap deviltry, as well as the seat of Oregon empire. In its columns I first saw my own writing in print, and now when it has ceased to be, I drop this friendly stone upon its cairn.—Portland Cor. S. F. Bulletin.

THE MOUNTAIN MEADOWS MASSACRE.—In the Wasatch Mountains of Utah is a tribe of Indians who call themselves "Mooties," or are called by the whites "Muddies," and from whom the clear and sparkling river, Muddy, derives its name. The Austin Reveille has the following in regard to the connection of these Indians with the Mormons in the Mountain Meadows massacre:

These Indians were formerly regarded by the dwellers upon the Colorado and travelers between Salt Lake and Los Angeles as warlike, and the most dangerous and troublesome in that section of the country. They have until lately been very friendly to the Mormons, and appeared to be in a great measure under their control. The mutual friendship, however, was only for the purpose of alliance against others, and when the opposite party became numerous and strong the Indians transferred their friendship. In this condition there is a prospect of verifying the old adage that "when thieves fall out honest men get their dues." These Indians are now anxious to reveal their knowledge of the crimes committed by their old allies, the Mormons, and in which they had participated. They have, perhaps, lately learned that murder and robbery are considered as crimes, for which punishment is meted, if committed by whites, but probably fancy that Indians are not punishable, such crimes being thought commendable by them. The Mooties reside in that part of the country where the Mountain Meadows are situated, and were witnesses and participants in the terrible massacre there committed by the Mormons a number of years ago. Of that horrid transaction they retain a vivid recollection, and the particulars of it they are anxious to reveal. They report their acquaintance with the leading Mormons who participated in the massacre, the disposal of the property, and also that there are now several children yet in Indian captivity who were taken from the murdered emigrants. The fact that there are children yet in captivity should induce the Government to make some exertion for their rescue, and to renew its investigations into the murder of so many men, women and children. We believe that while Cradlebaugh was Judge in Utah the affair was pretty well sifted, and the massacre fixed beyond a doubt upon the Mormons and its leaders made known. A vast amount of testimony was taken and several reports made by the stern and upright old Judge, and these are probably stowed away in the archives of some department at Washington. Perhaps any attempt at punishment during the terms of conciliating Pierce or effete Buchanan would have been abortive, but now, instead of such Presidents, an energetic Congress shapes the policy of the Government, and with new evidence offering, we call upon our loyal and determined Congress to renew the effort to rescue the captives of misfortune and to bring to condign punishment the perpetrators of one of the most terrible crimes that has ever disgraced the annals of American civilization. The time is opportune. The Mormons are defiant and oppressive, and yet seek shining lights for great examples of terror. It is time that an example should be made in return. Their murder of the emigrants, or the assassination of Bloomfield or Robinson, was not for plunder, nor to recover an apostate, nor to avoid a lawsuit, but to strike terror into others, so that the Mormons might rule undisputably. These will be repeated and other deeds of horror committed, unless the Government speedily intervenes to protect and punish. The Indians of whom we have spoken now mix with the miners and prospectors in the southeastern section of the State, are friendly and quite intelligent, and are familiar with the deeds of the Mormons. Their testimony or their aid in tracing circumstances may lead to the complete unraveling of that great mystery.

GOLD MEDAL FOR MRS. LINCOLN.—On December 1st, the gold medal purchased in France by subscription, for Mrs. Lincoln, was delivered by the Committee into the hands of Mr. Bigelow, at the United States Legation. Mr. Bigelow was at the same time requested to take charge of the following letter:

TO MRS. LINCOLN.

MADAME: We are charged to present you with the medal struck in honor of the great man whose name you bear, at the desire of upward of 40 000 French citizens, who wish to manifest their sympathy for the American Union by a tribute of respect to the memory of one of its purest and most illustrious representatives. If France possessed the liberties which America enjoys, it is not by thousands, but by millions that the admirers of Lincoln would be counted.

Pray accept, Madame, the homage of our profound respect.

In presenting the above letter and medal, M. Albert, the member of the Provisional Government of 1848, addressed Mr. Bigelow as follows:

"We thank you, Sir, for having taken upon yourself to transmit to Mrs. Lincoln the gold medal which French citizens desire to present to her. This medal is a homage rendered to the illustrious President for whom she mourns, a testimony of admiration for the man who immortalized himself in the service of the great Republic of the United States, and a thank offering due to him from all defenders of liberal and democratic views throughout the world. We are happy to think, Sir, that Mrs. Lincoln will receive this medal from your hand, and we beg you to accept the expression of our warm sympathy for the great nation which you have the honor to represent."

Mr. Bigelow warmly thanked the Committee for their sympathy with the American Republic.

THE SPRINGFIELD ARMORY.—The Springfield Republican says that preparations are nearly completed at the armory for a considerable increase in the force of workmen and their production. The work of altering over the present pattern of muskets to the new breech loader, of the model lately approved by the examining board at Washington, will be immediately commenced on quite an extensive scale, and the repair work on the old guns greatly reduced. One of the first of the new weapons, finished in every respect a model gun, was [illegible] to-day and sent to New York, where it will go to M. Montholon, the lately retired French Minister at Washington, and thence to France, though not for exhibition at the Paris Exposition.

A petition is in circulation for the pardon of the New Jersey legislator convicted of bribery. Arguments for the petition—He was green and knew no better. Of such is the kingdom of New Jersey.

Great Freshet at Walla Walla

The following is from the Walla Walla Statesman of the 1st inst.:

On Sunday the 7th our valley was visited by a warm rain, which rapidly melted the snow on the mountains and caused the streams that drain the valley to rise far beyond their usual magnitude. The rain continued to descend all day on Monday and through the night, until Tuesday morning, when Mill Creek was found to have assumed the proportions of a river. Up to this time but little damage had been done beyond the washing away of wood piles and an occasional outhouse. The rain continued to descend on Tuesday, and as a consequence the streams became more swollen. Mill Creek, about a mile from town, overflowed its highest banks, and the stream thus divided, poured a flood of water down along the line of Alder street, causing considerable destruction of property far removed from ordinary high water. At the corner of Third and Alder streets, so fierce was the torrent for a time, that it threatened to carry away Mr. Linkton's warehouse and with it a large quantity of grain. By great exertion the torrent was turned into the bed of Alder street, and the building escaped with little damage, other than the washing away of the foundations and the consequent sinking of the structure. The only other damage of special note along the line of Alder street was the filling of Mr. Phillips' fire proof cellar, in which was stored a stock of stoves and hardware, all of which is damaged. All day on Tuesday and the greater part of Wednesday, this portion of the town presented the appearance of a lake, and persons living beyond Alder street could only reach their homes by fording a stream waist deep. A temporary bridge was finally erected over Alder street, between Third and Fourth streets, which for the time being proved a great convenience.

Going back to the main channel of Mill Creek, at an early hour on Tuesday morning, a couple of small frame buildings, immediately in the rear of the Court House, were surrounded with water, and it was with some difficulty that the inmates of the house were removed. Subsequently both the buildings were carried away, leaving the rear of the Court House exposed to the full force of the rising torrent. This was the condition of affairs up to noon on Tuesday. As already stated, the rain continued to descend, and as a consequence this vast volume of water was steadily gaining force. All along the line of Mill Creek, out buildings were being carried away, and the piles, which were put down, at great cost, for the purpose of confining the creek to its channel, were being forced up and drifted away. Indeed the whole piling was a useless expenditure of money, the piles having proved worthless as a protection.—Whatever bulkheads had been resorted to, as at the upper end of Main street, they were found to answer the purpose, and withstood the fury of the torrent. The piling which ex Mayor Thomas had put down for the protection of the rear of his residence was in great danger. By extraordinary exertion, and putting in a bulkhead composed of gunny bags filled with gravel, the force of the current was checked, and the main building saved. As it was, Mr. Thomas is a heavy loser. Tuesday passed off without any other material damage to note, although the water was constantly gathering force. Throughout Tuesday night, the greater part of our citizens remained on guard, expecting every moment the bridge at the upper end of Main street to be swept away, and with it the deluging of the business houses on Main street. Fortunately the bridge rode out the storm in safety, and from this fact, the town in a great measure, owed its safety. Early on Tuesday night, the rear part of the lot on which the Court House stood washed away, and it was feared that the entire building would be swept into the torrent. At about one o'clock on Wednesday morning, the back of the building gave way, and the water tore through the timbers, but fortunately the front held on, and thus we were spared a great calamity.

During Tuesday night the bridge across Mill Creek, at the intersection of Second Street, was swept away, but fortunately without other damage. In the course of the night the rear part of Mooney's bowling alley, which extended back to Mill Creek, was carried away, and with it two young men who were sleeping in the back part of the alley. The first they knew of their danger they were floating down the stream. As luck would have it the wreck struck against a sand bank, after having gone but a short distance, and the terrified sleepers escaped without much difficulty. Early in the storm, the fire proof cellar of Mr. Stevens, at the upper end of Main street, was flooded, and the merchandise stored therein considerably damaged. Nearly all the fire-proofs abutting on the creek sustained more or less damage from being flooded, as will appear from the general statement of losses. Outside of town, we learn that all the bridges on Mill Creek, as far up as Perkins' Mill, were swept away. The bridges over all the streams that put into the Walla Walla are reported to be carried away, although possibly the report may be exaggerated. On Wednesday morning, at an early hour, the water in the Walla Walla, seven miles below town, marked nine inches above the high mark of 1862, and consequently is the highest that has been known since the settlement of the Valley. As one of the results of the fearful freshet, our mail communication was cut off from Monday to Thursday. On Tuesday morning, the indefatigable stage driver, Joe Sanders, started out with the Boise mail, but was compelled to return, having gone less than three miles from town. On Wednesday he attempted to take the mail through on horseback, but was again compelled to return. On Tuesday, that knight of the whip [illegible] Ward, succeeded in driving his stage through to Wallula and back, since which time no attempt has been made to go below. From all quarters of the Valley we hear of fields overflowed and fences carried away, and certainly more wide spread destruction could scarcely be imagined.

In the proper place we omitted to state that previous to the Court House toppling over, all the papers and public documents were removed to a place of safety. The Auditor's safe containing the records and title deeds was removed and now stands in front of the wrecked building. As usual in the case of a great calamity, instances of selfishness were exhibited disgraceful to human nature. Men who stood idly by and refused to lend a helping hand towards saving property, were among the most active in playing the part of wreckers and appropriating whatever they could lay hands on. These, however, were exceptions, the great majority having worked nobly and faithfully to save the property of their neighbors from destruction.

THE TOUCHET.

A gentleman just in from the Touchet, informs us that on Wednesday morning the water was 15 inches deep on the floor of the Milton mill. A considerable quantity of flour and grain was stored in the mill and was necessarily damaged. The dams leading to the mill was slightly damaged. At Waitsburg, we hear that no damage had been sustained. The water was on the floor of the new hotel but beyond that all the other buildings, including Wait's mill, had escaped injury. Further reports from the valley are looked for with interest, and we fear, that the catalogue of damages will be greatly extended.

STATEMENT OF DAMAGES.

Of the damages sustained within the city limits, we have prepared a careful estimate. The list may not be altogether full, but we think that it will be found in the main correct.

Dr. Benj. F. Patterson, formerly a surgeon in the United States army, and son of the late Judge Patterson of Mobile, Ala., has fallen heir to property of some $250 000. The only difficulty in the way of the lucky man possessing this wealth is that he cannot be found, not having been heard from since 1864, when he was at Bermuda Hundred, Va., on board General Graham's flag ship,

The Daily Oregonian

THURSDAY MORNING FEBRUARY 7 18

A New Manifesto

If statements made by Eastern journals of both parties are entitled to credit, the President has taken a step in advance of the position he has held for the past year. The details of a new plan of restoration are given which is said to embody his present views of the subject. It is curious to contrast this new position with that to which he has heretofore adhered with such pertinacious obstinacy. From the kind consideration, and even solicitude, which he now manifests for the blacks, one might almost be led to believe that he is prepared to go into the "Moses business" again. His plan does not differ essentially from that of Congress and the people, except in its substitution of negro suffrage for the disfranchisement of leading rebels. The principle of equal representation in the popular branch of Congress is substantially the same in the new plan as in the pending constitutional amendments. The proposition, so tardily made by the Executive to grant civil rights to all classes is the great point which has been pressed by Congress for a year past, and which raised the principal issue between that body and the President. Security for the national debt, and a provision against the payment of any debt contracted in aid of the rebellion, are features of both plans. Nobody will object to the President's proposition to incorporate in the Constitution a provision that no State has a right to secede from the Union, and that the Federal Government has no right to eject any State. But both these provisions are altogether useless. No constitutional enactment can make them clearer or more binding than they are already. Revolutionists defy constitutions, and men who desire to destroy their government are not restrained by compacts. Nor can the Federal Government as the Constitution now stands, eject any State from the Union, or expel their qualified members from Congress. It has never undertaken to do anything of the kind. The Southern States are out of Congress by their own act, and not by any act of the Government. Congress has never undertaken so high handed a proceeding as that of expelling the qualified members of any State from its halls. The Government has not ejected any State. The rebellious communities are simply in the condition in which they were left by the war.

The propositions which are given as the President's plan of restoration, are, however, deficient in one important particular. Add to them the clause of the amendments already pending, which places leading rebels under political disabilities, and there would be little in them specially objectionable to the loyal States. But this deficiency, if not supplied, will vitiate the whole plan. The people are determined that these rebel leaders shall not regain power. The public mind is made up on this subject. And though these propositions of the President's (if they are really his) show immense concessions on his part, the people will prefer the plan they have already ratified, to that which he is now said to offer them. The disfranchising clause must be tacked to Johnson's proposed amendments, or there is no possibility of their being accepted by the loyal States.

The President is out again for negro suffrage on the basis recommended in his celebrated Sharkey letter. He is willing that any negro who can read and write, and who owns property to the amount of $250, shall be admitted to vote. But he excepts white persons from this rule. If the negro is to be allowed the right of suffrage at all, there is no valid reason why there should be a discrimination between his qualifications and those of white persons.

What position will the Democratic party take in reference to these propositions? Will it take negro suffrage more readily from the hand of Johnson than from the hand of Sumner? Will the dose be less bitter when administered by the former than when prescribed by the latter? Though it may turn out that there is little truth in the reports from Washington, the Democrats should hold themselves in readiness to take anything Johnson may prescribe, for there is really no knowing what specific he may offer next.

Division of Washington Territory.—The Puget Sound Weekly has the following:

There is little probability, we apprehend, that the scheme to divide this Territory will succeed, and most assuredly not if the annexation to Oregon of the western portion would be likely to follow, if the people of the Sound can prevent it. As to a division only, there might not be much objection made on this side, yet we are inclined to think even that would meet with slight favor, but to be tacked on to Oregon, and kept out in the cold by the selfish policy pursued by the people of Portland and the Willamette Valley, in making every measure of importance subserve the interests of that small district to the exclusion and injury of the balance of the State, as is now the case—graciously permitted to gaze from a distance on the good things monopolized by the "hub," but constantly told to stand back, there is nothing for you—we most respectfully decline preferring our state of "territorial vassalage" with the privilege of working out our own salvation, however the people on the Columbia river side may feel in the matter. Perhaps the scheme of removing the headquarters of this military district from Vancouver to Portland, has pleased the citizens of Clark county so much that some are anxious to convey themselves, body and breeches to Portland. Division would be bad for us, but annexation would be infinitely worse. It would act as a clog upon every public enterprise for the benefit of this section, and keep it back as it now is for years to come.

Our friends at the Sound need not give themselves any uneasiness, nor need they be so forward in opposing annexation. We assure the Weekly that the repulsion is mutual. Oregon had that country once, but didn't care to keep it.

The Philadelphia North American in commenting on the decisions of the Supreme Court in the recent cases, remarks: "To the decision of the Supreme Court we bow with the same respect we would have others show to it were its decisions favorable or unfavorable to Republican principles and policy." That journal proceeds to discuss the subject in the spirit of the bitterest opposition to the tendencies of the court and asserting concerning "the defiant and outrageous conduct of the traitor Johnson and the decisions of the court, that the two things stand together and are a part of the same scheme," concludes thus: "We warn those who are concerned in it, that if it be pushed much further, the impeachment of Johnson, hitherto only talked of, will be undertaken in downright earnest, and that the Republicans will not for a moment shrink from the contest, however great it may be. Submission is not for the conquerors, but for the conquered."

The editor of the Johnson organ at Olympia, considers himself insulted and outraged because Congress has enacted a law providing for equal suffrage in the Territories, and in the name of his party anxiously demands to know "What better are we than buck niggers, half breeds and lousy Indians?" We should prefer not to undertake to answer this question. The 'Conservatives' must settle their own family matters, including all points of etiquette, title to precedence, etc etc, that come into dispute among them.

The Radicals enjoy the unenviable distinction of being the first party that ever mobbed a Chief Magistrate of the United States! They are a sweet set of scamps to talk about others violating the laws!—Copperhead Paper

The Copperheads enjoy the unenviable distinction of being the first party that ever assassinated a Chief Magistrate of the United States! They are a sweet set of scamps to talk about others violating the laws!

Going Below.—Judge Deady will go by the Oriflamme to San Francisco for the purpose of holding a term of the U. S. Circuit Court in pursuance of an order issued out of the Supreme Court of the United States.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN]

DATES TO FEBRUARY 6.

Congressional.

In the Senate on motion of Mr Morrill of Me the Secretary of War was asked [illegible] ... [illegible] the place and [illegible] of [illegible] the name.

On [illegible] of Massachusetts the Naval Committee were instructed to inquire into the management [illegible] especially of their buying ships [illegible] with rotten timbers [illegible].

On [illegible] the Military Committee [illegible] otherwise.

Grimes [illegible] ... [illegible] officers in the navy [illegible] ... [illegible] ... $2 ... 000.

[illegible]

He Reed. That the Secretary of the Treasury be required to report [illegible] what money was received from the sales [illegible] property [illegible] the Treasury [illegible] particular under the [illegible] laws of Congress [illegible] ... under what authority of law and under what act.

The Bankrupt Bill was taken up. [illegible] ward of Michigan moved to strike out section [illegible] rejected. On motion of Mr [illegible] of N H, the provision [illegible] of the 13th section which fixes the number of [illegible] creditors [illegible]. Several amendments were offered and rejected. On motion of Edmunds of Vermont a provision was adopted that all citizens of the U S who were petitioners to be declared bankrupt shall file an oath of allegiance with their petition. On motion of Mr Henderson of Mo the minimum of indebtedness for which voluntary bankruptcy may be instituted was fixed at $1,000 instead of $300 as in the House bill. The bill was then taken out of the Committee of the Whole and reported to the Senate. On motion of Sumner of Mass a provision that no discharge [illegible] whose assets do not pay fifty cents on the dollar within a year from the date [illegible] shall be granted unless the written consent of a majority of the creditors [illegible]. After discussion the vote on the bill was taken and resulted as follows: ayes, 20, nays, 22. So the bill was lost. Adjourned.

Washington News

Washington, Feb 5.—A majority of the House Committee on Indian Affairs have concurred in the report on the charges against the Commissioner of Indian Affairs. They say there is no evidence of fraud or corruption in letting contracts, and that the House should rescind the resolution which directs the Secretary of the Interior to suspend the execution of them. The report of the minority, Hart of New York, Clark of Kansas, Henderson of Oregon and Van Horn of Missouri, is that these contracts should be set aside as unjust.

The friends of the Bankrupt Bill are confident that enough strength can be rallied from among the absentees to pass the bill.

Hooper made his financial speech yesterday in the House. It attracted marked attention.

Quite a sensation was created in the House yesterday by the appearance of Gens Grant and Sheridan, in whose honor the House suspended business. The Speaker welcomed Sheridan, introducing each member personally.

The Senate Finance Committee is understood to be decidedly opposed to the House contraction resolution and is disposed to leave the matter in the hands of Secretary McCulloch who stopped $4,000,000 of the legal tender contraction last month and will not exercise the power confided in him in the matter except in case of real necessity.

Chicago, Feb 6.—Secretary Seward sent to the Senate yesterday the letter upon which is based the charges against Motley. It was written by McCracken step-son of Chas O'Conor. He does not state that he heard Motley make the allegations complained of in the letter which is directed to President Johnson but makes a general onslaught upon the diplomatic corps. He says "Massachusetts has stuffed Europe with foreign ministers and consuls not one of them worth a curse, that our consul at Frankfort is nothing but a tool of Chandler that Mr Hale, minister to Spain, was abusing the President and his policy." Considerable surprise is manifested that the letter was sent in by Mr Seward.

New York, Feb 6.—The President has stated that he would veto the tariff bill.

Chicago, Feb 6.—The Senate vote on the bankrupt bill yesterday in detail, was Ayes—Chandler, Conness Dixon, Doolittle, Edmunds Fessenden Foster, Howard Howe, Johnson McDougal Morgan, Martin Pollard Ramsey, Ross Stewart, Sumner, Van Winkle—20. Nays—Brown Buckalew Cragin Davis Fogg, Fowler, Grimes Harris Henderson, Hendricks Kirkwood Lane, Morrill, Patterson Saulsbury, Sherman, Trumbull Wade, Willey, Williams, Wilson Yates—22.

So the bill was lost. Mr Harris originally voted in the affirmative but changed for the purpose of entering a motion to reconsider.

Washington, Feb 6.—The Commissioner of the Land Office has just completed a comprehensive map showing the exact locality of mines and mineral land in the United States as far as known, and giving the locality of surveyors' and registers' offices. He will in a few days transmit to the office at Oregon City 94 patents of old settled claims. He is preparing orders to land officers at Springfield, Missouri, to have withdrawn the lands along the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad to the State boundary.

The debate in the House yesterday on Indian appropriations, Mr Kasson stated that there is no superintendency in which Indians are so well managed as that of Utah. Orders will soon be issued for the setting apart of twenty one reservations of 200,000 acres each. The California light houses will also have reservations, and one for same purpose at Ano Nuevo and St George. Also for a military reservation at Fort Yuma.

Chicago, Feb 6.—The President gave the fifth state dinner last evening. It was intended to bring together the leading radicals of Congress and Southerners. Half of the radicals invited refused to attend including Ashley, Bingham, Conkling and Boutwell.

New York, Feb 6.—John McCraken is the writer of the Motley letter. He is the step son of Chas O'Conor. He says he has made it his special business to visit our Ministers and Consuls and learned their views. He thinks the Government greatly misrepresented by a majority of our foreign ministers, which are held by Massachusetts parvenues and gives details of conversations he has overheard.

The Indian Bureau—Washington News

Washington, Feb 5.—The Committee on Indian Affairs report that the charge against the Commissioner of awarding contracts to a person who was not the lowest bidder, and on samples of goods inferior to others, has not been sustained, and no evidence of corruption or favoritism has been presented. They recommend the restoration of the contracts suspended in December. Four members of the committee made a minority report, submitting a resolution that the purchasers of goods deserve censure.

The House Loan Certificate bill will be adopted with amendments at the next meeting of the Finance Committee of the Senate.

The House Banking Committee has voted down a proposition similar to Grinnell's resolution suspending all measures looking to contraction.

Commercial Regulations with Borneo

New York, Feb 5.—It is stated as a fact by merchants interested in the China trade, that the Rajah of Borneo has granted to Americans under the title of the 'American Trading Company of Borneo' the entire northern part of the island with three adjacent islands and jurisdiction over the inhabitants.

Heavy Robbery in New York

Between 12 and 1 o'clock this morning the office of L W Jerome, Wall street, was entered by burglars and robbed of $100,000 in 5-20's U S bonds. The detectives have some hope of discovering the guilty parties.

The Cretan Revolution.

New York, Feb 5.—The Greek Consul in this city has just received the following dispatch by cable:

Liverpool, Feb 4.—The Hellenic community of Liverpool, request you to tender their grateful thanks to the Boston and New York Committees and to the American people for their sympathy in behalf of the destitute families of the Cretans who are fighting for liberty.

The New Plan Meets with Disfavor.

New York, Feb 5.—The Times special says the Southern plan published yesterday will be submitted to the Reconstruction Committee to-day. There are no hopes of its adoption. The Southern Republicans are violently opposed to it and the Southern press, as far as heard from is against it. The President has telegraphed to the legislatures of the Carolinas, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas now in session urging its adoption. He says he does this as a private citizen. The letter of the Southern Governors is brief and non committal. The only effect so far, is to modify the sentiments of the Republican members by this demonstration on the part of the South to give suffrage to freedmen.

The Tribune to-day opposes the plan because it is unfair to require such a qualification of black suffrage by States which discourage the negro from acquiring education and property. The Tribune is glad the Southern whites are taking hold of the subject of reconstruction.

The Times special says that the report that a meeting of Southern Republicans negatived the proposition made by the Tribune for universal amnesty and impartial suffrage, and denounced it bitterly as Johnson's policy, is not true.

Miscellaneous

Chicago, Feb 6.—The Louisiana House of Representatives has passed a bill convening a Constitutional Convention on the 1st of May.

The Maryland Legislature has repealed the bill for a new municipal election in Baltimore. There will therefore be no election.

Leavenworth, Feb 6.—The Kansas House has passed a stringent act forbidding Texas cattle to be driven through the State of Kansas.

The Senate has appointed a committee to investigate the alleged frauds attending the election of Pomeroy and Ross to the United States Senate.

Official dispatches have been received at the War Department stating that there is no truth in the report that fifty men were killed by the Cheyenne Indians.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE

London, Feb 5.—During the delivery of the Queen's address the people cried "Reform, reform."

Ross Winans has contracted with Russia to build locomotives.

Advices from Manchester give an unfavorable account of the market. Goods, yarns and breadstuffs tend downward. Wheat declined 1 pence per quintal.

Berlin, Feb 5.—The Duke of Flanders, heir apparent of Belgium is soon to marry the Princess Hohenzollern.

Chicago, Feb 6.—The Queen's speech at the opening of Parliament yesterday was transmitted over the cable. It contains about 500 words. The following are the most important parts: "I have suggested to the Government of the United States a mode by which the questions arising between the two countries, arising out of civil war may receive an amicable solution and which, if met, as I trust will be received in a corresponding spirit and remove all grounds of possible misunderstanding and promote relations of cordial friendship. The war between Spain and the republics of Chili and Peru still continues. The good offices of my Government in connection with the French have failed to effect a reconciliation. Your attention will again be called to the state of representation in Parliament and I trust your deliberations conducted in a spirit of forbearance and mutual forbearance may lead to the adoption of measures which, without undue disturbance of balance of political power, shall finally extend the elective franchise.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH

San Francisco, Feb 6.—An exciting race came off over the Ocean House track, yesterday forenoon between Katy Trick and Emigrant. Emigrant won the first heat, the [illegible] which was [illegible] ... [illegible] two miles [illegible] ... 6.05.

The story is that a dispute arose between two brothers [illegible] ... whether in regard to the shooting is not [illegible] ... not until after they had gone [illegible] the quarrel terminated in a tragedy. It appears that one of the brothers struck the other across the face with [illegible] ... and broke his jaw, and then attempted to shoot him and also made a savage lick at his brother's wife. From all we can gather in regard to the matter, the assaulting party is an unmitigated wretch and [illegible] richly deserves to suffer the full rigor of the law. But some person who was present or is acquainted with the facts, should place the said facts in the hands of a magistrate that a legal examination may be had.

The Storm in Southern Oregon

From the Jacksonville Sentinel of the 26th ult we extract the following in regard to the great storm in that section:

The ravages of the late storm, and the damage done, real and prospective, cannot be estimated. The adage that "in peace we should prepare for war," has been clearly demonstrated within the past week.

The damages done on Jackson Creek, and in Jacksonville, cannot as yet be estimated even approximately. The rain commenced to fall on Friday afternoon, about 4 P. M. and continued to fall until Monday noon. The highest water at town, was Sunday night, at about 11 o'clock. Above town the damage was to mining claims taking away all sluices and flumes, and filling up the diggings, so that it will take weeks to repair the damages sustained, and in some instances work is stopped for the winter. In town, the first building attacked was Plymale's livery stable. Great fears were entertained that the waters would break through in the old drift or tunnel running down "C" street, in which case the whole creek would probably have cut a channel, discharging into Rich Gulch at the Clerk's office. J. Rounda bush, opposite the livery stable, suffered severely. The water washed away the bank to within a few feet of his door. The fruit trees standing in the yard were washed up by the roots. The house occupied by J. Flood's family was surrounded by water, and the floors covered with sand and sediment. The bridge, built by Street Commissioner Fiddler, in 1865 stood. The greatest sufferer on Oregon street is J. R. Wade. His lot is completely ruined. Sand, gravel and stones are banked up on all sides of his house, so the floor is the lowest, and is liable, without a minute's notice, to be filled with water and sediment. Messrs Hull's garden was overflowed notwithstanding the great amount of money and labor expended on levees and embankments. The breakwater put in by Clugage, at the foot of Fourth street, was washed out and the water then had full possession of the bank, washing it away very fast, and greatly endangering the house, now occupied by Dr. Cabaniss. From that point the water was thrown with great force against the breakwater built by the town, lower down. This gave way, and the water took the road, a part running through the grape garden of John Neuber, doing great damage. Ours is damaged much principally by gravel being washed over his garden. The valley road is greatly damaged and utterly impassible for vehicles. M. Hanley's farm is injured, not so much by being covered with gravel, as by the land being washed away. Below his farm we have not heard what the damages are.

Applegate and Jackass Creeks were higher during the flood than ever before known. The Crescent City stage has not been able to cross Applegate since the 17th inst. We have not heard what damage has been done, but it must be considerable.

Bear Creek was very high and did much damage in places. The road this side of Eagle mills though passable, is very materially injured. The greatest havoc committed, was at Phoenix. Opposite S. Colver's residence, the current set in to the west bank, washing it away to the old race and seriously endangering D. B. Foudray's mill. Lower down, the vats of Mr Lindley's tannery were washed out. The water then bore to the other side and cut a channel through S. Colver's field, leaving Lindley's saw mill and dam high and dry. The damages below do not seem to be as great, though the fences in the bottom are injured.

Successful Burglary—Stowell Chamberlain & Co's Safe Blown Open and Robbed.—Our town was startled on Friday morning by the discovery of a great burglary in the Banking Office of Messrs. Stowell Chamberlain & Co. The safe was a double one, made by Lewis Lillie & Son, of the largest size weighing many thousand pounds. The burglars obtained an entrance into the office by prying open one of the windows with a jimmy. In the lower left hand corner of the right hand outer door of the safe which was two inches thick, a hole was drilled through which powder was introduced. It was blown open separating the outside from the bolts and unfastening, rendering it a complete wreck. The lower hinges of both doors were broken off. They next attacked the inside safe which was two feet high, extending the width and length of the inside of the main safe. This safe was one and a half inches thick, lined with folding doors. They drilled another hole through the right hand door at nearly the same point they had on the outside safe blowing open both doors. This gave them access to the money and bonds amounting to twenty five thousand dollars which they carried off. The larger part of this belonged to special depositors. They also took valuable papers belonging to the firm, leaving in their flight a bag of gold and silver, also a hundred dollar bill. This safe was made to order by Mr Lillie (of Lillie Iron) and was supposed to be burglar proof, as it was double thick on one side the other, with Lillie's combination lock on the outside and inside door. No trace of the burglars has been discovered. They came well prepared with jimmies, drills, gunpowder &c. The clerk of the bank did not sleep there until twelve o'clock at night. The explosion was heard about four in the morning, showing their work expedition in their work. feb7d1m

A LOCAL REPORT.—Local reporters usually know a good deal about other people and their business whence they came from where they are going for what they have been are or may hereafter be, distinguished how much they are connected with highly respectable families, how often, and what they drink etc etc but few people have the least idea of a reporter's life and experiences At the end of a year he might put it up about as follows as an average of reportorial experience

CHANGED POSITIONS.—Some days since, three Oregonians, or Webfeet, came here by steamer and put up at a hotel on Jackson street occupying the same room Their names are Vincent Osborn and Sinclair The latter had $200 which he put between the mattresses of his bed, with the knowledge of Vincent. Next morning Vincent arose first, and on Sinclair arising he found his money missing Vincent at once charged Osborn with the robbery had him arrested and prosecuted him vigorously before Justice Barstow Osborn was acquitted there being no evidence to convict him but the zeal of Mr Vincent in the case had unfortunately caused grave suspicions to arise in the minds of detectives Lees and Ellis, and yesterday he was in turn arrested as the robber About $100 which he could not account for the possession of was found on his person, and he was locked up to answer —Alta California

Yes, Webfeet, of course! Whenever a man gets into a bad scrape in San Francisco, if he has ever been in Oregon—no matter if he has only taken a flying trip from San Francisco to Portland and back—he is invariably heralded by the smart reporters as a "Webfoot" in limbo This practice is about as old as the San Francisco press The probable facts about the particular "Webfeet" above named are that, if they went down on the steamer at all they are roughs from Idaho, or San Francisco birds who after a brief look around Portland, returned to their old haunts. We will wager a reportorial quill that the police of San Francisco have often seen them before and know them well, and that neither of them would have ever been in Oregon but for having found San Francisco, temporarily, an inconvenient place to stay in as regards personal liberty Nine-tenths of all the criminals up in our police and justices' courts are recent comers from San Francisco men who find a short absence from that city conducive to safety and who go back there to ply their nefarious occupations as soon as prudence permits. Though the police of San Francisco, know that such absences are merely temporary, the moment one of these birds gets into limbo, he is published as a "Webfoot" or "Oregonian" The fact is, that about one in every twenty of such persons is an "Oregonian" and nineteen of them are old Californians and belong as much to San Francisco as Emperor Norton' Webfeet, proper, may be slow, and innocent, and not "smart," and all that, but they figure in police courts very seldom

ALAS, TOO LATE.—Woe is us! The mails have done us We are bowed in sorrow A golden opportunity has been lost. An "occasion" has flitted by and we did not know it till it was alas, too late We are just in receipt of the following polite note, (gilt edged and rose scented,) from Chas. de Young & Co., proprietors of the Dramatic Chronicle, San Francisco, under—no, over—the date, Jan 11th, 1867

Gents—You are respectfully invited to meet the proprietors and editors of the Dramatic Chronicle on Wednesday, the 16th inst , at their New Office, No. 606 Montgomery street, up stairs, between the hours of 11 A. M and 2 P. M., on the occasion of the commencement of their Fifth Volume.

Mark that date—the 16th of a month which is forever gone And then imagine what must be our "pireelinks" when the visions came floating past our mind's eye of the champagne corks which flew, the feast of reason which was feasted and the flow of soul which, flowed, then and there, in that "up stairs," No. 606, Montgomery street. "There is a tide, &c., which taken at its flood"—that's what's the matter That letter was taken at the flood and detained by the flood till now, when the Chronicle has galloped far along into its 5th volume Ah, well we have no earthly consolation except the fact that, if the invitation had come in time, we couldn't have gone "up stairs," No. 606, Montgomery street We are consoled The Chronicle comes to us regularly and there is in that some balm.

FROM WALLULA AND UMATILLA.—By passengers who came down last evening from Wallula and Umatilla we learn that on Monday there was a fearful gale at Umatilla. Chimneys and roofs were in great danger of being carried away Col Dow of the Umatilla Press, was after some difficulty safely landed. His head was clear and hereafter as heretofore, he proposes to make the Press the great defender of the Columbia river, from Astoria to the head of navigation. Umatilla begins already to show signs of a forthcoming busy spring There had been an unusual quantity of rain at Wallula and surrounding country The Touchet and Walla Walla rivers had overflowed their banks The stage from Walla Walla being unable to cross the Touchet, wagons were sent out from Wallula with passengers to connect with the stages and by walking, wading and swimming, most of them succeeded in reaching Walla Walla in fifteen or sixteen hours a distance of twenty five miles The court-house at Walla Walla had been nearly undermined by the freshets The walls do not stand exactly perpendicular Snow fell during the whole trip from the Dalles to Vancouver.

FIREMEN'S VISIT TO VANCOUVER.—The visit of the Firemen of this city to Vancouver is said to have been an unusually jolly affair Upon landing, our delegations took the Engine on shore, set it up and played it a while, after which they hauled it up through the streets in a sort of triumphal procession and then performed the usual day of "housing." A large crowd of citizens with the Fire Company, turned out to receive the Engine and Portland Firemen, and followed them to the engine house In the evening, they had a ball and supper which went off in the very best style and everybody enjoyed it "very muchly." Yesterday morning when our firemen started for home, the Vancouver company escorted them to the boat and several of them came over to this city to finish up the jollification A fireman of whom we inquired what sort of a time they had, replied "Bully" We thought that, "nuff sed."

TURNED UP, ALL RIGHT.—A painful rumor was in circulation yesterday, that a young man named Patterson, from Grand Ronde, was one of the men who fell from the wharf Sunday night and were drowned. Having business appointments for Monday morning which were not kept, and the interested parties being unable to find him, it had been surmised that he might have been one of the men who fell overboard. We are happy to say that he returned to this city yesterday evening from Oregon City where he had gone Monday morning Who was the man drowned with McCagh is again as much a mystery as ever We have been unable to learn that any man is missing beside McCagh

LODGE INSTALLATION.—At a regular meeting of Faith Degree Lodge No 1, held on the 4th inst., the following officers were installed to serve for the term ending July 31st, 1867

At a meeting of Crystal Lodge No 19, held on Tuesday evening, the 5th inst the following officers were installed to serve for the term ending April 30th, 1867

John Richardson W C T Mrs Rose Martin W V T , M E. Traver W S. R. E Eskildson W F S Miss Florence Skinner, W T ; R B Nixon W M Mrs Lottie Bramhall W I G John Hill W O G Miss Viola Skinner W L H S Miss Florence Taylor W A. S , Miss Mary Skinner, W D. M ; J D McDonald W C.

DAN WATSON'S BENEFIT.—The performance at Oro Fino Hall, last night, was the best thing of the kind given in Portland within the last year A very fair audience was out, and judging from the frequent roars of laughter the people did not consider themselves sold The amateurs performed remarkably like veterans and the veterans rather outdid themselves Joe Delavan will take a benefit next Wednesday evening

RECORDER'S COURT.—Chung Song and Ah Dun, were yesterday up for depositing a nuisance on a lot, judgment reserved till this morning. The examination of Louis Camel on the charge of grand larceny was set for Saturday morning James Johnson d d , having been in jail over night was let off without further punishment.

CLEANING OUT THE FREIGHT.—The two steamers now taking in cargo, will very nearly clean out the freight in store here None of any consequence has arrived for the last two weeks As soon as the water goes down, freights are expected to come down the Willamette again with a perfect rush

THE DROWNED MAN.—Parties were engaged throughout the day yesterday in efforts to recover the body of Mr McCagh who was drowned at Couch & Flanders wharf, Sunday night At intervals a cannon was fired near the spot where it is supposed the body would naturally lie, but without success.

PROBABLY THE LAST "FISH STORY."—The last fish story must be credited to Oregon During the earthquake excitement it was reported that Klamath Lake had spontaneously combusted and that fish from that region, with fins burned off, were offered for sale in the Yreka market

BRIDGE COMPLETED.—The bridge across the crevasse made by the late rains in the McAdamized road near the toll house has been completed and teams were crossing yesterday

WILLAMETTE FREIGHTS.—Arrived per Alert Feb 6th—4,530 qr sks flour, 1005 boxes apples 40 bales Oregon City wrapping paper

THE AJAX.—A telegram from San Francisco Feb 6th announces that the Ajax will sail for Portland on Saturday the 9th

WHAT IS IT.—The Oriflamme on her arrival anchored in the river near the ferry landing We observed a number of her passengers intently gazing at some object on shore upon inquiry it proved that the object of attraction was the sign board of our well known clothiers Barman Bros

WE ARE DELIGHTED WITH IT.—Miss Mary Ann Bard of Bardstown Ky writes to Willcox & Gibbs Your machine is at hand, and we are DELIGHTED WITH IT Ours is the only one of the kind in this place and every one that sees it is DELIGHTED WITH IT ALSO Stewart & Gourley Agents, 103 Front street

Indian Fight in Eastern Oregon

A letter from the Dalles dated February 5th gives the annexed intelligence

A messenger arrived yesterday morning from Capt McKay's command of Indian scouts bringing intelligence that the gallant scouts had had a fight with "Paulina's" band on Crooked River near the Chowa pass The fight was pretty severe yet not to the Captain's men, only one being wounded The loss of the enemy was 26 killed 8 prisoners 6 stand of arms and ammunition two mules and one Indian horse The Captain brought the prisoners to the Warm Spring Reservation where they are now in safe keeping "Old Paulina" made his escape unscathed

There is a rumor that the Snakes attacked a party of Umatilla Indians near the North Fork of the John Day's killing 4 Umatillas and capturing 40 head of horses As to the truth of the statement, I cannot speak, yet it seems to be credited here

Explanation

(We give the following a place in the OREGONIAN, though disliking to have our space taken up with the recital of personal matters.—ED. OREGONIAN

OREGON CITY, February 4th, 1867

Please allow me through the medium of your paper, to reply to an article which appeared in the Daily Herald, of the 3d inst , under the head of "Equal Taxation" As it is particularly addressed to me and the City Council of Oregon City I reply to it as a matter of courtesy, and to confute certain statements and malicious insinuations against men of unquestionable integrity, rather than from any desire to enter into a controversy or cavil with an unreasonable man Therefore I will merely state facts that are on the city records

Mr Daniel H—— says that the City Council did not abate any of his assessments in 1865 — It is true they did not, because the test oath was wanting, and the petition was laid on the table In 1866 he asked for an abatement His assessment was referred to a committee, and they recommended an abatement The City Council gave the matter attention, and made a reduction of $10,000 In justice to the tax payers of Oregon City, a greater reduction could not have been made Indeed every indulgence was made by the City Council, but it is hard to satisfy an avaricious man It is almost impossible for any one assessor to ascertain the real value of a large estate divided into 800 lots Consequently there will be some discrepancy At the same time Daniel Harvey is the only tax payer in Oregon City who sent in any complaints to the City Council in 1865 Therefore I honestly believe that the City could not find a more competent and disinterested assessor than W. P Burns.

The great offers and chances for bargains talked of by the complainant, I look on as idle nonsense, coming from the source it does I want no trade or dealing with such men

FORBES BARCLAY

A fashionable young lady of Louisville and a noted beauty, suddenly faded to a pale, sad spectre of her former self. No cause could be assigned, and at length she was watched narrowly and was observed to rise in the night, and in her night dress proceed to the arbor in the garden, and sit for a long time. Her father becoming alarmed, approached and spoke to her, when he discovered that she was in a somnambulic state. She is now under medical treatment and will probably be cured

The Graefenberg Company's Uterine
CATHOLICON does not contain one particle of calomel or mercury and cases of Female Complaints which require other treatment than the Catholicon are extremely rare It should be used in all cases of Deranged Monthly Periods Weakness, Irregular Appetite, Nervousness Headache Disturbed Sleep Acid Stomach Nausea Indigestion and Pains and Difficulties connected with the Uterine Organs
THE UTERINE CATHOLICON
Is a most successful remedy for Gravel and all affections of the Kidneys and Bladder while in the troublesome symptoms attending Pregnancy the benefits of the Catholicon are most remarkable It is a perfect restorer to functional and general health from budding womanhood to the turn of life, and those patients who have used the GRAEFENBERG COMPANY'S UTERINE CATHOLICON find difficulty in expressing their thankfulness for the beneficial effects of this wonderful medicine.

A Period Without a Parallel

The following paper, which appears in Bancroft's Monthly, for January, was written by H C Williston an old Californian, once of the firm of Bonestell & Williston who published the Wide West, one of the earliest weekly newspapers of San Francisco In 1857, Williston published a newspaper in Victoria, but has since returned to the East, we believe

It was the autumn of eighteen hundred and forty eight The city of New York was all afloat with an incoming tide of journeys from the rural regions, for far and wide had spread the glad tidings that El Dorado had at last been located, that Ophir, newly found, was one of the territories lying within the limits over which the star spangled banner was long to wave

The flame needed no fanning and no fuel but fanning and fuel were given to it by the press in innumerable issues regular and extra, synopses of whose contents were placarded on bulletins at the office doors, where men, women and children jostled each other for priority of perusal, while urchins, tender in years, but tough in texture dwarfs in dimension, but stentors in screaming, lugged big bundles of the newly printed papers far up town, making the streets ring with the shouts in which they divulged just enough of the news to incite purchasers to buy the privilege of detailed perusal

Young men grew frantic and unable to pursue the routine of toil with which but yesterday they were content and hopeful Elders were besought for means of reaching the country where riches could be had by all, entreaties which these wise ones vainly strove to silence by small scraps of wisdom from their experience In these endeavors of the ancients to check youthful importunities, crafty use was made of the delusions recorded in history as "Bubbles," and mention was frequent of South Sea, Mississippi and Darien.

But the ancients were in the minority, and shared the fate that is usually accorded parties that are outnumbered. No one could deny the justness of their views, but this was an exceptional case It was undeniable that no yield of gold yet known in any mining locality could give to so large a number of emigrants a total corresponding to the aggregate of even the most moderate hopes But this was an exceptional case this was a discovery of something new under the sun. And, looking back from to day, the chronicler hereof is by no means certain that the issue failed to prove that the youngsters were right He is strongly inclined to the opinion that though worsted in the argument, they were triumphant in the event, though theoretically wrong, they were practically right

Straightway the shopkeepers fell into the flood, and swam steadily with the current Forthwith awning posts and sign posts bore fruit for which no seed had been sown, and were brilliant with blossoms that had never been in bud It was marvelous to the common mind to note how many were the articles that were thus placarded as indispensable to the adventurer bound for El Dorado, and how readily he could procure them at the emporium of Messrs So and So But he must beware of a spurious article, such as was displayed around the corner by Watts, Itname & Co, with which many ignorant persons had already been deceived

Equally marvelous to common mind, was the discovery that the substance, over whose school book name every child's tongue had stumbled while the article itself was being munched as a forbidden luxury between its teeth, was to a California outfit a material, indispensible requisite Of course "the intelligent reader has already divined" that the substance alluded to is India-rubber. And were the chronicler to make a choice as a matter of space occupied between enumerating articles into which it was asserted that India-rubber could be usefully made, and a statement of things into which it could not be usefully made, the decision would wofully puzzle him

It was a case of the blind deluding the blind! Ignorant of the needs of the California adventurer as were the shopkeepers, not less ignorant were their customers Out of this commercial chaos, however, there was evolved one good thing—one article eminently fit for the purpose to which it was devoted Hail, California hat! Pilgrims in the Path of Empire did not need a seer from Hungary to prove to them thy comfort and convenience!

How to get to the Land of Promise, in the shortest space of time, was the problem which occupied the multitude, a problem whose solution was modified to the consideration of the majority of inquirers, by that other problem—how to get there in the cheapest way But the great bulk of the community went about the now doubly dull and thankless task of bread winning, with their thoughts gloomily distraught by the utterly unsolvable problem of how to get there at all!

Yet the ways of going presented by enterprising merchants were many and various, and the price demanded was in many instances low, so low, indeed, as to preclude the possibility of fair consideration being given for the amount Here was the good ship Apelles, of eight hundred tons burthen, ready for charter or for sale to a company raising a certain amount of money. Those who availed themselves of this opportunity would be spared all the mishaps attendant on other enterprises for the same destination, for the Apelles could sail right up into the gold region! The fortunate passengers could anchor her in one of the gold-bearing rivers, where she would serve them as a domicil during the few weeks which would be occupied in amassing the wealth which was to be the lot of each and all.

And here was the clipper-schooner Mercury, warranted to make the passage from port to port in ninety days at farthest. Any one conversant with the prevalent weather on the Pacific coast, could see the reason why. It would be necessary to "beat up" from the equator to the latitude of San Francisco, and what chance would a square rigged vessel stand in such work against a flying "fore-and after" like the Mercury! "A word to the wise," etc

But why try the long, tedious and needless voyage around the horn, when there were several other plans more promising and equally certain? Here was Captain Dick Darrell, the celebrated and well known Texan ranger, ready to pilot a party across the plains for his horse, equipments and rations The cost at the outset to each man would be considerable. But it would be an investment rather than an outlay. The mules, wagons, etc, could be sold on arrival in the mines at a fabulous figure And then the camp life and other experiences of the journey, would be invaluable as an apprenticeship, hardening those who went through it to the coming toil of a miner's life Best of all, there was the excitement of hunting, etc, on the route. Who knew but he might kill a buffalo or grizzly bear, or meet with real, red Indians? Who would choose the pent, monotonous six months' life on a ship, when he could reach the gold region in half the time, riding gaily over the free, fresh prairies?

And for those who liked their travel "mixed" there were two Isthmus routes. Twenty or twenty five days to Chagres or San Juan, one day's canoe navigation, one day on mule back then the calm Pacific Then a swift bark's prow parted placid seas till the Golden Gate was entered And there you were! How easy it seemed in prospect!

The period proved that hope, no less than misery, loves company The California adventurers massed into associations as naturally as though individual action were impossible. There was universal faith in the potency of combination, which had its reaction a few years later in a general skepticism as to the availability of combinations in working placer diggings

The papers overflowed with advertisements from enterprising young men without means addressed to an enterprising old man with means The extent to which the aspiring youths were ready to mortgage their future for the bare chance of setting foot on Ophir, was only exceeded by the extent of the demands of the graybeards who advanced the capital necessary for such achievement It is, perhaps, well for the parties to these contracts, that the majority of the agreements were never fulfilled. Better for one party in this world, better for the other in the next For never was labor so completely the slave of capital as it was made by many of the agreements under which money was advanced to enable young men to reach California in the year immediately succeeding the great gold discovery Perhaps the period which followed gave labor its revenge in placing its master at its mercy, never was manual toil so bounteously rewarded in its money prices as the Golden State in that period which so well deserves the title of the golden decade

And necessity gave birth to invention in aid of the enterprising emigrants At once there appeared in the market numberless pieces of mechanism more or less complicated and ingenious the originators and vendors of each of which claimed that it was the most perfect of all arrangements for extracting the precious metal from soil or matrix with or without quicksilver Some of these were vibratory, others semi-vibratory, some rotary at high speed, others rotary at low speed some working on centripetal principles others operating in obedience to centrifugal force The models of all worked well using shot as the material to be eliminated in the absence of particles of gold But it is the opinion of good judges that not one in a hundred of the cumbrous, complicated gold saving machines that were shipped from New York to California ever reached the mines Some were thrown overboard to lighten laboring ships Some, consigned upon arrival, found their fate in adding to the "made land," by which the harbor of San Francisco has been well nigh ruined others met divers and diverse fates, all unforeseen by their constructors and purchasers but not one ever went into successful operation in digging wet or dry or bar or flat, in gulch or tunnel The simple rocker, tom and sluice were soon devised and readily and generally adopted

There was an almost universally prevalent dread that the great news was too good to be true Few said so except those who would gladly go if it were unable They sought to assuage their disappointment by asserting the grapes to be sour But many had misgivings that were not uttered, that the news was greatly exaggerated, and even when corroboratory intelligence arrived there were not a few who, convinced of the truth of the news, passed sleepless nights pending their impatient preparations for departure, from their anxiety lest, before they should be able to gather the golden harvest the labor of others earlier in the field would in its fruit so reduce the value of the king of metals that its possession in abundance would no longer be wealth, perhaps be no more precious than equal weight in other metal or iron For it was a time when the general excitement ran close to craziness as well it might

It was a sad time for women—maids, wives and mothers Sad for those whose male kindred had resolved to go sad for those who feared at each home coming of dear husband, son or brother or at each visit of a lover to hear that he too had caught the prevalent distemper saddest for those who saw young hearts bowed down by repressed ambition, blasted hopes and fruitless energy young hearts whose despondency was only varied by the torturing stimulus of envy at witnessing on every side others no more capable, but more fortunate in gaining opportunity

On the shore of a mighty bay there had sprung into being, as it were in a night, a great city—great in extent of surface and number of population, rather than in architectural qualities, for in truth its edifices were but rude structures of clapboard and canvas The most pretentious of these buildings were those occupied as drinking and gambling saloons The interior decorations and furnishing of these displayed a splendor in marked contrast with the rude exterior and surroundings, and a contrast no less remarkable was afforded by a comparison of the French and German gamblers and their attendants, with the rude, reckless crowd of customers that sought diversion and relaxation in these resorts. At some of the tables gamblers from New Orleans dealt the well known Southwestern game of faro, at others swarthy Mexicans tempted the unwary with a 'lay out' at monte At a few tables (and these proved most attractive) women displaying all the devices of the toilet, and with faces that were ever smiling, presided over games decided by throws of dice, and manifested a courage and persevering industry in the pursuit of their calling, marvelous to witness And at one of the tables where roulette was the game, a child less than ten years of age, fair in face and innocent in mien, was the magnet that held dozens of bearded men, habitually rough in word and deed, quiet as lambs while their golden ounces flowed from their buckskin bags to the gambler's till in a stream, rapid and regular in its current.

If ever the characteristics of a city justified the coining of such a word, then might San Francisco in the fall of "forty nine" have been justly termed a "cosmopolis." It would have been hard to name a nation one of whose sons could have been placed in its streets for an hour's walk without meeting a countryman. Amid the clash of tongues that filled the air, it seemed as if no one could feel himself native, so heterogeneous were the sounds, so abundant the foreign elements that assailed the ear Nor was the eye less disfranght by novelty and contradiction Here a half naked Kanaka jostled a Greek, there a Cornish miner ordered his dinner of a Chinese waiter in a "French restaurant," where host and hostess were Italians.

The contrasts in morals were no less notable than those in manners The Sabbath day was only remarkable by out-door divine service, celebrated on the Plaza by a minister whose exhortations began without a congregation, but ended in the midst of a crowd, orderly by very force of the religious reverence native to the American character, which was then and there predominant from various reasons. Yet, around this very same Plaza, the drinking and gambling saloons were, at the same time, open and in full operation The minister's wife, a lady of true Christian culture, aided her husband's work, by raising her voice in songs of praise In the intervals between the verses of the hymns, strains of secular music, vocal and instrumental, were plainly audible from the dens of vice with which the square was surrounded.

It seemed as though the extremes of civilization met in the City of the Bay, at the period I strive to picture. The western farmer, fresh from the "Plains," saw here, for the first time, an opportunity to woo the fickle goddess in an enterprise needing neither strength nor skill. Amid the glare of brilliant lamps, the glitter of gilded furniture, the flashing of mammoth mirrors, the soothing sounds of music, courtly men invited him to try his fortune, some offering him an opportunity at one description of game, others proffering the same chances at another There was, technically speaking, little foul play attempted, for, among the heterogeneous hordes that swarmed these saloons, were men, rough in guise, and rustic in aspect, who had been in 'Orleans,' in Texas, and in Mexico Knowing this, and knowing, too, that with these men a dispute was but a word and a shot, and the shot one that needed not to be repeated, the gamblers were wary, and played without "advantage"

For men not merely universally went armed, but paraded their arms publicly, usually revolvers, slung on a belt at the waist Each man, valuing his own life at little, came to be reckless in his regard for the life of his neighbor It was no unusual thing for one who had sustained a slight from an acquaintance to declare his intention to "shoot him on sight." If any one new to such a state of things, inquired why such a one manifested such watchfulness, the nonchalant reply was made, "O! he's gunning for somebody," sometimes mentioning the name of the hunted one, sometimes avoiding its mention

Yet all these men had strong home ties, all of them cherished fond domestic memories The mail steamer arrived once a month The mails were usually delivered on the day succeeding the the steamer's arrival Long before dawn on that day, dozens of men might be seen to rise from the ground in the vicinity of the post office, and with the blankets that had formed their bed hanging from the shoulders, form in line at the post office window, a portal which was not open for several hours later, and where the service was so tardy, that many were forced to wait some nine or ten hours before their turn came It was especially pitiful in the rainy season to see the steadiness with which these men worked drenched and hungry for a chance to hear from home, and the downcast air with which they would turn away at the reply 'No letters for you' Not a few would dispute the dictum of the clerk, and insist on handling and inspecting the pile of letters for themselves, a request that the clerk ran no slight risk in refusing, however courteously

Men in business whose letters required speedy reply, but whose time was indeed money in those days, were wont to hire men to stand in the line for them, and, in some instances, prior places in the line are said to have been sold for several golden "ounces (doubloons)

The period was intensely democratic The alcalde (mayor) of the city did not disdain to lose his peso (silver dollar) at the side of a shivering greaser, whose shirtlessness was only half concealed by his closely hugged serape, and there are those who assert that they have not only seen a judge of the Supreme Court joining in the "stag" (exclusively male) dances, prevalent in the pot houses of the period but have witnessed that functionary staggering through a galop with a siren from the Australian penal colonies, afterwards escorting that damsel to the adjacent bar, and partaking of a potent beverage in her company

It was a good period when physical labor was king If you were strong, there was only one thing that could prevent your becoming rich—lack of power to keep what you had the power to get If you had, besides strength, skill to use that strength—the mastery of tools in working wood or iron—right royally were you repaid for all exertion It is true outlay was heavy, but not proportionally so, and he who chose to exercise self denial in personal desires, gathered a full harvest of fruit for the seed sown

But brains were at a discount He who had mastered mathematics and grasped geometry, found it easier to solve a problem of Euclid than to earn a dinner It was sad to see multitudes of such as these going vainly about the street in search of something which they were capable of doing A favorable refuge for this class was the position of a waiter in the eating houses It is a noteworthy fact, that so marked was the contrast between the bearing of these men and the duties of the position they filled, that by common consent such servitors were invariably styled steward, that being considered more dignified designation than waiter This peculiarity was noticeable all along the north Pacific coast, in ports, on steamers, until a very recent period Its presence was partly due to the impatience of the men at being placed in a situation galling to their pride, but I think it was mainly owing to a desire on the part of the mass of travelers to spare the sensitiveness of the unfortunate and was but a manifestation of the "wondrous kindness" of a "fellow feeling"

San Francisco was not the only "mushroom city" of this period Toward the north sprung up Sacramento, on the banks of the river bearing that name To the south, on an arm of the San Joaquin, rose Stockton These cities presented fewer salient characteristics [illegible] because their denizens were [illegible] journ[illegible] in the [illegible] made up the [illegible] Francisco If there was any [illegible] the hordes that gathered in the [illegible] it was that indescribable [illegible] expert express the [illegible] be seen or heard, and [illegible] very near expressing [illegible] Pike' which [illegible] one of his book [illegible] in the Northwest

Yet the builders of the placer [illegible] clear, but evermore to be turbid [illegible] tal pestilence in the summer [illegible] did a work which in its [illegible] chronicled and can hardly be [illegible] There cholera and dysentery [illegible] down strong and weak alike These men [illegible] ened and died in their tents [illegible] and unattended in many cases their [illegible] only made known when time had made their neighborhood intolerable to their fellows But on the description of such phases of the period as the [illegible] it is neither pleasure nor profit to dwell

How to these cities there came, a little later a fate in which even the sufferings of their creation was outdone by the virtue of their [illegible] How, rising again, they were again smitten down—the one by fire the other by alternate fire and flood How the industry and energy of the people triumphed over calamity and [illegible] by [illegible] ical victory How more evils beset the people and tried them sorely, until they rose in [illegible] revolution and achieved regeneration All these were part and parcel of the period of which I write, and combine to make it memorable

THE AMENDMENT IN ARKANSAS.—The Arkansas Senate Committee in reporting a resolution to reject the amendment, submitted the following reasons

First—that the State of Arkansas does not know that the amendment was adopted by a Congress such as is provided for by the Constitution, as nearly one third the States were not represented therein when the amendment was passed

Second—It never was submitted to the President for his sanction as it should have been according to the very letter of the Constitution under which Congress exists, and which it has sought to amend

Third—The enormous power sought to be conferred by giving authority to Congress to enforce the provisions of the amendment, would take from the State all control over local and domestic concerns, and virtually abolish the States

Fourth—The second section seems to be an effort to force negro suffrage on the States, whether intended or not, and gives Congress the power to bring this about, whether the States consent or not

Fifth—The third section as an act of disfranchisement of the wisest and best citizens of the State, must be rejected The people, having performed all the conditions of the surrender and general amnesty, are entitled to restoration to the Union, as before the war

There is no reason to believe that the adoption of the amendment would secure restoration and if it would, they recommend a quiet and dignified course of endurance, rather than to purchase it at the sacrifice of principle, dignity, and self respect

WHEAT FROM CALIFORNIA.—A cargo of sixty thousand bushels of white wheat arrived at this port recently by sea from San Francisco, California, on shipboard, at less cost of transportation than the same amount of wheat could have been brought hither from Chicago by railroad This extraordinary fact speaks volumes as to the embargo upon the produce trade of the West laid by the railroad monopoly comprising all the different leading lines that have united in the current schedules of freight charges If those schedules are as low as the railways can afford to make them, the fact only proves more clearly what we recently said, that as a means of transportation for the burdens of commerce, over the vast distances of the interior, the present railroad system is an unmistakable and indisputable failure

If the railroad companies hope to retain the enormous trade they have sought to grasp they must find out the means of running at lower rates and we are satisfied that they can easily do so if compelled The shortest and best way to effect this is by means of competition from transporters able to run at much lower rate, and this is pointed out by the success of the experiment just made of bringing California wheat to Philadelphia by sea. No railroad combination or monopoly can possibly interfere with operations like this, for the sea is free, and the cost of transportation by that channel always cheaper than by railway —Philadelphia North American

BEN WOOD AND FARO.—An Eastern paper says There are many gamblers in this land, says a New York correspondent, but the greatest of them all is the Hon Ben Wood, ex member of Congress Indeed, I may say he is the biggest better in the world at the game of faro, or aim at at any other game. A few nights since he engaged in a "snap game," the Hon John Morrissey Congressman elect, backing the game Wood played with thousand dollar 'chips' and frequently bet ten to twenty thousand dollars on a card At one time during the game he was $85 000 loser, but the fickle jade, fortune, deserted Morrissey, and after a play of fourteen hours Wood retired from the game his winnings being one hundred and forty thousand dollars He won one bet of $40 000 on a case card, betting the "nine" to win This is no doubt the largest winning ever made in any country. Wood has frequently won or lost $20,000 to $30 000 in a play and once lost $63,000, and on another occasion won $73,000 in a 'snap game,' well known to sports I may mention as a fitting sequence to his great winnings, on Saturday last he bought a splendid piece of property here known as the Tryon Row, for which he paid a quarter of a million dollars And there are persons here who, within twenty five years, have known this man to want for the price of a dinner

A SIGNIFICANT MARK.—It is related that there used to be a good English clergyman connected with the Providence Conference who had a carpet bag marked with the signal initial L On one occasion in those times the annual Conference reached the final adjournment in the afternoon but a few minutes before the hour when the members were to leave town. Many of them, anticipating such a state of things, had taken their baggage to the church where the sessions were held and as soon as the benediction was pronounced there was a rush for the valises and bags in the entry Our English friend was at the last end of the crowd and not being able to get to the pile stood at the outside of the circle calling out 'As any brother seen a carpet bag marked Hell?'

AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.—It is proposed to have at the Paris Exposition which opens in April next a full representation of the newspaper press of the United States thus By a pre arranged organization, a specimen copy of the first number of every newspaper of every description, published throughout the country in the month of January, 1867 shall be sent to a given place, together with a statement of the amount of its circulation The copies so received shall be bound up in volumes classed either by States or by large cities, accordingly as may be determined, with a view to portability and convenience of form

THE GROWTH OF TEXAS.—To show the wonderful rapidity with which Texas is settling, we quote from one of our exchanges the following description of Sherman, a town, judging from its name, which has evidently sprung up since the war "Sherman can boast of as good a site as any town in Northern Texas It is situated near the center of Grayson county, and in the richest portion of the State It contains as many or more business houses than any town of the kind in the State ten dry goods houses, one large church one hotel, one boarding house, one restaurant three groceries, four blacksmith shops, four wood shops, and the finest brick buildings in Northern Texas"

A HOLD ON THE TITTLES.—The Southland Times tells another story illustrative of the old saw that the "course of true love never did run smooth A young couple in Southland had laid a plan to outwit the vigilance of cruel parents and elope The Times tells the sequel thus The youth stood beneath the window the lady attempted to climb out—when oh! horror some one detained her from the rear! Why don't you come, gentle Amelia? She answered in an agitated voice I can't Bill—mamma's got hold on my tittles!"

A SELF STRUGGLE.—The following duly signed, was lately contained in a Western paper

"Whereas, at particular times I am importune my friends and others to let me have liquor which is hurtful to me and and detrimental to society this is, therefore to prevent any person selling me liquor, or letting me have it on any account for if they do I will positively prosecute them, notwithstanding any promise I may make to the contrary at the time they let me have it"

A visitor to the New Haven Almshouse, finds there an old gentleman, formerly well off and respected who case is particularly noticeable from the fact that he has a daughter a talented author, who has made a handsome fortune with her pen and who charms her readers with tales and poems and the eloquent, pathetic manner in which she pleads the cause of poverty, and defends the humble from 'the proud man's contumely'

Below are some of the many testimonials

This is to certify that I John B Jodwan was blind for over nine years and I tried all means of a cure, and and many doctors and all of no effect, and I spent all the means I had Finally, I had to become a county charge, and when I was taken to Dr G W Brown, and stated my case to him and misfortune he at once commenced to treat my eyes and I now I am well, and commend all those that are suffering with diseases of the eyes to call on Dr G W Brown The reason why I do this is to let suffering humanity know where they can be cured J B JODWAN

THOMAS LIVINGSTON,
Deer Creek Precinct, Douglas county Oregon
SALEM, July 21 1866

This is to certify that I was blind for over four months and almost blind for one year and a half, I tried several eye doctors but received no benefit I had almost given my case up as hopeless when fortunately I heard of Dr G W Brown now of Salem I was induced to try him, he performed a surgical operation on my eyes, and gave me treatment I soon began to recover and in a short time I was perfectly cured I do this in justice to one who rescued me from a state worse than death and also for the benefit of those who are laboring under similar afflictions that they may know where they can get relief It is now about eight months since my eyes were cured and they still remain good I can see to read the finest print without difficulty and my eyes can bear the strongest light without pain

L. JAY S. TURNEY,

HAVING LEASED THE ABOVE NAMED HOTEL, is prepared to accommodate the traveling public, and ONE HUNDRED REGULAR BOARDERS, in as good style as any House on the Coast. He has determined to make the 'Bennett" as good as the best and better than any public house in Salem He will soon complete some important improvements, which will add greatly to its appearance and comfort, and intends to merit and hopes to receive his share of patronage

He has secured the services of "Charley" (known to be the best cook in Salem and one of the best in the whole country) and other competent persons to manage the culinary department, and is resolved to set as good a table as can be found anywhere—not in clap-trap, pomp and show, flummery and fine furniture but in an abundant supply of the very best the market affords

His Bar room will be kept warmed and lighted and well supplied with newspapers, periodicals and other suitable reading matter, and kept in a manner which will make it an agreeable resort

In short, he intends making an effort to please ALL who stop at the BENNETT HOUSE And he most respectfully requests his friends everywhere to give the old and well known stand at least one more trial before concluding they can do as well elsewhere, and promises if they are not well treated, and properly cared for, and at reasonable figures it will not be the fault of the public's most obedient and most humble servant,

Each Oyster is opened by hand with the knife, with strict regard to the preservation of the Liquor, by which means all the original flavor is retained Contrast this method with the one usually pursued of opening the Oysters in bulk by steaming, by which means the native Liquor is lost, and a manufactured one is substituted and therefore the actual superiority of this brand is at once apparent

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

616 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco, Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, [illegible] ted and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies [illegible] they are cured for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure or make no charge

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells Fargo & Co

Address DR. J F GIBBON, 616 Kearney street, corner Commercial San Francisco Post Office Box 251.
